EPOS introduces the ADAPT 100 Series, a high-quality audio solution engineered for hybrid working

Copenhagen, Denmark – February 25, 2021: EPOS, the premium enterprise and gaming audio brand, today announces the launch of the ADAPT Series. A headset engineered for the hybrid professional, the ADAPT 100 Series boasts outstanding audio quality aimed at boosting concentration and ensuring seamless communication on demand.

Designed to meet the new challenges of hybrid working

The emerging hybrid workforce is facing new challenges that demand new solutions from audio devices. The ADAPT 100 Series is built specifically to address these needs, with smart audio technology to ensure uncompromised performance both on the go or in the office. The ADAPT 100 Series uses EPOS Voice™ technology with a noise-cancelling microphone to optimize the user's voice and enhance their calls, and integrated EPOS ActiveGard® technology protects users from acoustic shock. The series is also equipped with cross-functional capabilities to simultaneously enable a superior listening experience, free from disruption – allowing it to meet increasingly overlapping personal and business needs.

Perfect for long meetings

In addition to a stylish look, the ADAPT 100 Series is built for user flexibility and all-day comfort, featuring large on-ear leatherette or foam earpads and an ergonomic, lightweight design. A discreet boom arm that neatly folds away into the headset when not in use allows for seamless transition between calls and other tasks.

“If we’ve learned anything over the past year it’s that we’re adaptable, flexible and resilient when it comes to doing business. Beyond that we’ve found great value in having high quality audio solutions available to us, and we’ve seen that many global organizations have recognized audio as a key enabler of business continuity.

That’s why we’ve designed the ADAPT 100. It’s a device series that’s developed with today’s hybrid workforce in mind. Lightweight and crafted for all day comfort it enables users to collaborate seamlessly no matter their location.”
